Where is Ratsch?

In a vivid audio play the nutcracker girl Furbina accompanies children between approximately 5 and 12 years through the exhibition. Clever Furbina is desperately looking for her brother Ratsch. On her adventurous search she meets different animals who help her. Younger children can discover various play stations in the exhibition which appeal to all senses.

Key moments in history

Historical spotlights connect the four exhibition rooms. On a trip through time brought to life in a vibrant way you will learn surprising facts about milestones in the history of the National Park. Large scale illuminated images present a picture of the relevant era. The corresponding audio track lets you dive into a world which is hard to imagine today.

Panorama

Room 1

Fascinating National Park

Experience the National Park in a completely new way! Spectacular perspectives, large-size and unique snapshots let you dive into the wild world of the largest Swiss wilderness area. The Panorama provides an insight into the remotest areas of the Park and gives close-up views of the world of animals and plants in all seasons.

Wilderness arena

Room 2

Open the stage for nature

Protecting all natural processes is the highest aim of the National Park. In the Wilderness arena you will be able to experience immediately that nature is in unrestricted charge here. The stage made from Cembra wood lets you dive into a unique wilderness spectacle, surrounded by unfettered natural processes and supported by an authentic sound experience.

Open air laboratory

Room 3

Become a researcher

How does nature develop if man does not interfere? Since the foundation of the National Park in 1914 exact observation of changes in nature has always played an essential role. In the Open air laboratory you can personally be a researcher. At interactive stations you gain insights into selected research projects: On the world of animals and plants, on the Spöl river, climate change or the return of large predators.

Perspectives

Room 4

Wilderness – what about us?

Really wild is the leitmotiv of the National Park. But what does wilderness mean – and what does this have to do with me? Questions on our personal relationship to wilderness run through the entire exhibition like a common thread and lead to a surprising finale in the Perspectives room. Here we are made conscious of the fact that with our actions we have an influence on the development of nature and thus also of wilderness.
